

Welcome to Turku UAS International Week 2022

26 -28 April 2022 (webinar)

Cornerstones for the Future: Research, Development, Innovation and Education in Health and Well-being

Turku UAS International week 2022 is organized by the Faculty of Health and Well-being. It brings together both teachers and RDI staff, giving an opportunity to share your expertise, to plan and create new initiatives or to give a lecture for students and colleagues. NB! The event will be organized entirely as a webinar.

The theme for the week is "Cornerstones for the Future: Research, Development, Innovation and Education in Health and Well-being". We welcome lectures and presentations also with topics related to the following degree programmes: Biomedical Laboratory Science, Dental Hygiene, Emergency Care, Physiotherapy, Radiography and Radiotherapy, Social Services, Occupational Therapy, Nursing (Nursing, Midwifery, Public Health Nursing) and TUAS Master School. The programme consists partly of joint modules for all the guests, as well as modules with different field-related themes and topics. The week offers a great opportunity to share your experiences with colleagues from around the world.

The Turku UAS Faculty of Health and Well-being educates future professionals to work in the field of health care and social services. The starting point for the teaching activities at Turku UAS is innovation pedagogy, a learning approach emphasizing multidisciplinary, experimental and practice-oriented learning. We are one of the actors of the Health Campus Turku, a significant multidisciplinary education cluster formed by four higher education institutions and a university hospital.

Registration is now open!
Please note that there is no participation fee.

Please register here by the 7th of February 2022.

The detailed programme of the week will be published in March 2022.
