4-8 APRIL 2022

THE WORLD IS OUR CLASSROOM

“REPAIRING THE WORLD OF TODAY BY SHAPING THE WORLD OF TOMORROW.”

The advent of COVID-19 challenged us at the socio-economic level and pushed us to look at technology and ecology in a new light. No part of life is untouched by digitalization, which will continue to shape and revolutionize the future.

To make our institutions more resilient in the face of unexpected events, we need to rethink our approach in anticipation of future shocks. Our world is struggling to spruce up the economic activity, and some sectors like core-manufacturing, retail, travel & tourism and logistics are reeling. One thing that we already know is that this crisis is triggering a broad push for more digitization.

02 INNOVATION AND DIGITALIZATION CHALLENGE

However, what's in question is how can it be used to create a better future while addressing pressing sustainable development goals (SDGs). This has changed our lives irreversibly and has forced us to explore innovative ways and methods to progress. Remote working, heightened security and contactless services have become the new reality.

The uncertainties surrounding the evolution post-COVID-19 and its impact on the economy is gripping. As a human race, we have never been so technologically connected. It has given birth to the era of hyper digitization and the rise of digital assets.

We would like to call for more effective collaboration and coordination around digitalization within the academic institutions on accelerating digitalization and innovation affects efforts to achieve the SDGs.
